Constitution of India—Article 246—Interpretation of Entries in the Seventh Schedule (Lists I, II and III)—The entries in the Legislative Lists must be interpreted broadly—In examining the constitutional validity of a taxing statute on grounds of legislative competence, the Doctrine of Pith and Substance, not the Aspect Theory, governs the inquiry—Where an apparent overlap exists between two entries, the Doctrine of Pith and Substance determines the true nature and scope of the legislation and the list under which it falls—The Aspect Theory is relevant only to ascertain whether distinct aspects of an activity can be subjected to different taxes and whether the taxable event in question corresponds to a specific aspect of that activity - State of Kerala and another v. Asianet Satellite Communications Ltd. and others - I.L.R. 2025 Kerala OnLine 314 SC: Neutral Citation No.2025 INSC 757.

Constitution of India—Articles 246 and 248—Interpretation of Entries in Lists I, II and III of the Seventh Schedule—The power to tax is not an incidental or ancillary power, and cannot be implied within a regulatory entry under the Constitution—Since there is no taxation entry in List III, neither Parliament nor the State Legislature has competence to levy a tax on any subject of that List—Entry 97, List I (residuary power) cannot be invoked where a specific taxation entry empowering either Parliament or the State Legislature to legislate on a subject is expressly enumerated in List I or List II - State of Kerala and another v. Asianet Satellite Communications Ltd. and others - I.L.R. 2025 Kerala OnLine 314 SC: Neutral Citation No.2025 INSC 757.

Constitution of India—Seventh Schedule—List II, Entry 62—Assessees operating as DTH service providers have a direct nexus with the entertainment provided through their mode of operation, which constitutes “luxury” within the meaning of that entry—The activity of broadcasting is a service liable to service tax imposed by Parliament, whereas the activity of entertainment falls under Entry 62, List II—Hence, the assesseees are also liable to pay entertainment tax - State of Kerala and another v. Asianet Satellite Communications Ltd. and others - I.L.R. 2025 Kerala OnLine 314 SC: Neutral Citation No.2025 INSC 757.

Education Rules, 1959 (Kerala)—Chapter XIVA, Rules 9, 48, 49, 51, 51A, and 52—There is no provision under the KER recognising the claim of a leave substitute as against a regular vacancy that has arisen during the period of engagement as a leave substitute— Government Order dated 09.01.1999 was issued to fill this lacuna—Rule 9 merely outlines the duty of a manager to comply with orders issued by the Government or the Department, provided such orders are in accordance with the provisions of the Act and the Rules—Where a Government order is issued otherwise, such as an executive order under Article 162 of the Constitution, it does not fall within the scope of Rule 9— Managers may still be proceeded against for non-compliance with such executive orders, but that would be independent of Rule 9 - Manager, B.E.T. Upper Primary School v. Khayis A.S. and others - I.L.R. 2025 Kerala OnLine 315 (F.B.).
